UM HIRES NEW REGISTRAR

MISSOULA –

An administrator from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology has been named head registrar at The University of Montana.

David Micus, associate registrar at MIT since 2002, will join UM July 1. He replaces Phil Bain, who retired as head registrar last month after more than 32 years of service to UM.

Until Micus arrives on campus, associate registrar Laura Carlyon will serve as interim registrar through June 30. The Registrar's Office oversees class registration, course and room scheduling, course catalogs, transcripts, grading, graduation and other administrative academic processes.

Micus was hired this week after a national search. He comes to UM with a long history of registrar experience at New England colleges and universities.

Micus began his career in higher education as a continuing education program manager at Emerson College in Boston from 1981 to 1984. From there he moved on to assistant registrar at Northern Essex Community College in Haverhill, Mass., before going on to the position of registrar at New Hampshire College in Manchester. He worked at Boston University's registrar office before assuming his current position at MIT.
